Sustainability in Transport Webinar Series

The Sustainability Society and the Transportation Group are co-hosting a webinar series, supported by Engineering NZ, to stimulate discussion and knowledge sharing across a range of sustainability issues within the transportation arena.

This series is relevant for transportation professionals and the wider built environment and urban planning community where considerations of movement, accessibility and resilience are crucial to taking a system-wide integrated approach to our cities.

Check out our first sessions coming up with more planned for early 2019.
